The Dithering Tradesman

the world's not the
telling of it,

a funny trade where-
in you can't worry
the light

rain and sun, the subtle ways night comes,

whatever moon, a-
sail or thin

within the sabled rush
of fragrances.